

Yakob Berntal

The Guide for Youth Football Coaches

A guide for experienced and inexperienced youth coaches

Expose'

FACTS AND NUMBERS:

Contact information	Yakob Berntal Zelterstr. 48, 60529 Frankfurt a. M. Deutschland	E-Mail: y.berntal@yahoo.com Mobile: +49 (0)151-5928 1634
Title	The Guide for Youth Football CoachesI – A guide for experienced and inexperienced youth coaches
Language	English
Text type	Non-fiction, a guide
Addressed to	Youth coaches of football as well as of other team sports, football clubs, football players and football fans, institutes that train coaches for team and ball sports. The book is also highly suitable for parents of young football players who want to be able to assess the training competence of their child's coach.
Content	The book presents the basics required for the job of youth coach of football and gives numerous practical tips.
The book in numbers	Order Number: will follow soon Edition: 2021 The text is divided into 7 sections and is supplemented with 115 photos, 33 drawings, 10 illustrations and 21 tables.
Format	Size: 19.5 x 27.5 cm (pages 19 x 27 cm) Weight: 780g Pages: The number of pages in the English edition has not yet been determined. In the German one there are 180 pages. They are printed on high-quality 135g/m² photo printable paper. Cover: Hardcover (bound book), laminated (glossy), coloured Other: Inside cover dark blue, headband dark blue, bookmark dark blue All together this equals: High quality that will make reading a pleasant experience for a long time.

BACK COVER TEXT

If you coach a youth football team or if you are planning to do so, then this book is what you need. This practice oriented guide lays the foundation for doing a professional job as football coach in the youth sector.

Be it with F- or A-juniors, the district league or the national league, here you will find the answers to the most important questions: what, how and why. In plain English you will be given valuable tips about how you can act, and what you should best avoid.

Numerous examples are given to make the input clear as are illustrations. The book has been designed as the printed form of a course for coaches, but it is also a reference book that you can always access.

Two fictitious youth coaches, the strict "Kosta" and the disorganised "Freddy" accompany you through all sections of the book. With short episodes and realistic and amusing drawings you will be sensitized to avoiding Kosta's and Freddy's mistakes.

KOSTA & FREDDY

Freddy is a likeable, but very disorganized youth coach. He is always trying to please his charges, their parents and his superiors. The reader is shown how Freddy is often left feeling bewildered when things don't work out the way he wanted them to. Freddy has neither a training plan nor clear objectives, nor well thought-out methods. In this guide, however, these are set out in plain language.

Kosta is a strict and ambitious youth coach. He thinks a good youth coach is someone who reaches a good ranking in the league table with his team. He is mainly concerned with trying to prepare his C-juniors for the next match. His aspiration to be a successful coach is often at the expense of his players, as illustrated in various situations in the book. Kosta's domineering behaviour towards others masks his lack of expertise. This expert knowledge is contained in the guide.

LIST OF CONTENTS

PREFACE

1. INTRODUCTION: THE ROLE OF THE YOUTH COACH

2. WHAT IS EXPECTED OF YOU

- 2.1 The needs and wishes of the players (G- to E- juniors)
- 2.2 The needs and wishes of the players (D- to A-juniors)
- 2.3 The needs and wishes of the parents (G- to E-juniors)
- 2.4 The needs and wishes of the parents (D- to A-juniors)
- 2.5 The expectations of the club/leader of the youth section

3. THE CONTENT OF THE FOOTBALL TRAINING – YOUR CURRICULUM

- 3.1 Ball technique
- 3.2 Tactical input
- 3.3 Fitness and coordination skills
 - 3.3.1 Strength
 - 3.3.2 Stamina
 - 3.3.3 Speed
 - 3.3.4 Agility
 - 3.3.5 Balance skills
 - 3.3.6 Rhythmic ability
 - 3.3.7 Kinaesthesia
 - 3.3.8 Spatial orientation skills
 - 3.3.9 Reaction skills
- 3.4 Social competence

4. AGE GROUPS, THEIR CHARACTERISTICS AND THE FOCAL POINTS OF THEIR TRAINING

5. THE TWELVE QUALITY CRITERIA OF FOOTBALL TRAINING

5.1 Messages and addresses

- 5.1.1 Your messages are necessary
- 5.1.2 Your messages are direct
- 5.1.3 You are the owner of your messages
- 5.1.4 Your messages are complete and specific
- 5.1.5 Your messages are consistent – avoid double meanings
- 5.1.6 You differentiate between statements and opinions
- 5.1.7 You focus on only one message
- 5.1.8 Your messages are supportive
- 5.1.9 Your verbal and non-verbal messages overlap
- 5.1.10 You reduce your messages to essentials
- 5.1.11 You shorten repeated messages
- 5.1.12 Your messages are appropriate for your players' level of cognitive development
- 5.1.13 Your messages are appropriate for your players' level of moral development
- 5.1.14 You make sure your messages have been understood

5.2 Internal differentiation

- 5.2.1 Explanation of the term
- 5.2.2 Internal differentiation in training

5.3 Didactics

- 5.3.1 Explanation of the term
- 5.3.2 Putting the subject of the training unit into words

5.4 Feedback

- 5.4.1 The importance of feedback

- 5.4.2 The features of correct and incorrect feedback
- 5.4.3 Quality and quantity feedback
- 5.4.4 Individual and collective (general) correction
- 5.4.5 Relevant and irrelevant correction

5.5 Context

- 5.5.1 The training unit as part of a complex
- 5.5.2 The training sequence
- 5.5.3 The choice of content considering the next match
- 5.5.4 The choice of content considering physical demands

5.6 Methodology

- 5.6.1 Explanation of the term
- 5.6.2 The use of various methods
- 5.6.3 Teaching and learning ball skills in small steps
 - 5.6.3.1 You simulate the sequence of moves without the ball
 - 5.6.3.2 You use suitable aids
 - 5.6.3.3 Parts of the body are isolated
 - 5.6.3.4 The ball is still or rolls or flies slowly
 - 5.6.3.5 You use incentives
 - 5.6.3.6 You let each player learn at his own pace
- 5.6.4 Methods of visualising
 - 5.6.4.1 Visualising sequences of moves
 - 5.6.4.2 Visualising game sequences
- 5.6.5 Teaching sequences of game combinations in five steps
- 5.6.6 Use of various methods for fitness and coordination training
- 5.6.7 Ways of working in training
- 5.6.8 An open start
- 5.6.9 Working at stations
- 5.6.10 Open and closed tasks

5.7 Organisation

- 5.7.1 Organising the training unit
- 5.7.2 Communicating with players and parents outside training times

5.8 Expert knowledge

- 5.8.1 Expert knowledge in the ball technique sector
- 5.8.2 Expert knowledge in the tactical sector
- 5.8.3 Expert knowledge in the sector of fitness and coordination

5.9 Safety

- 5.9.1 Eliminating danger
- 5.9.2 Warning of danger
- 5.9.3 Safety aspects when planning content and methods
- 5.9.4 Further safety tips: dos and don'ts

5.10 Structure

- 5.10.1 The parts of a training unit
- 5.10.2 The structuring of training as a developmental process
- 5.10.3 Structuring the training unit with a recurrent theme between the training parts
- 5.10.4 Training plan for a training unit with a recurrent theme running through the training parts
- 5.10.5 Further points concerning the structure of the training unit

5.11 Example, persuasion and 'reward and punishment'

- 5.11.1 Example
- 5.11.2 Persuasion
- 5.11.3 Reward and punishment
 - 5.11.3.1 The term
 - 5.11.3.2 The principle of reward and punishment
 - 5.11.3.3 Useful information and tips concerning reward and punishment
- 5.11.4 The problem player
 - 5.11.4.1 The rebellious player
 - 5.11.4.2 The egocentric player
 - 5.11.4.3 The stressed player

5.11.4.4 The repeatedly injured player

5.11.4.5 The bad loser

5.12 Time

5.13 Conclusion and table of the twelve quality criteria of training

6. MISCELLANEOUS

6.1 The image of the youth coach

6.2 Dealing with parents

6.3 A contract with the players

6.4 The assistant coach

6.5 The ball

6.6 The squad

6.6.1 Recruiting new players

6.6.2 Nominations for matches

6.7 Coaching

6.7.1 Explanation of the term

6.7.2 Preparation leading up to match day

6.7.3 The pep-talk before the match

6.7.4 Looking after the team during the match

6.7.4.1 Five forms of coach support during a match

6.7.4.2 The no-gos in game management

6.7.5 Substitutions during the game

6.7.6 Coaching at half-time

6.7.7 Concluding and taking leave

6.8 Girls in boys' teams

6.9 Taking part in your own training

6.10 Planning training camps and tournaments

6.10.1 Training camp

6.10.2 Planning a training camp

6.10.3 Mini training camp at your own club

6.10.4 An open training camp at your own club

6.10.5 Competing in a tournament

6.10.6 Further points concerning training camps and tournaments lasting several days

6.11 Special training

6.11.1 Goalkeeper training

6.11.2 Training to improve ball technique

6.12 Performance assessment in football

6.12.1 Assessment tests

6.12.2 Modern methods of measuring performance

6.12.2.1 A GPS-based football tracking system

6.12.2.2 Video-based data scouting

6.13 Nutrition

6.13.1 The importance of nutrition for the young football player

6.13.2 Energy requirements

6.13.3 The nutritional pyramid

6.13.4 The role of the youth coach concerning a healthy diet

6.14 Forming a bond

6.14.1 Measures to encourage a bond between a player and his team

6.14.2 Measures to encourage a bond between a player and his club

6.15 Epilogue

Bibliography

About the author

ABOUT MYSELF

I was born in Israel in 1965. Football has always been my passion; however, it wasn't enough for a career as a professional footballer.

At the age of 21 I had already started training youth teams, but also continued to play football myself in amateur teams. Parallel to this I studied for a teaching diploma in sports and also took courses to become a qualified football coach

In the year 2000, aged 35, I emigrated to Germany, where, having passed the second state exam, I graduated from the Johannes-Gutenberg-University in Mainz as a teacher of Sport and English at secondary school level. For 11 years I have been teaching at a comprehensive school in Offenbach. I also hold a UEFA-A-class football trainer's licence. I have continued to indulge my passion for football by playing as an amateur (until 40), coaching youth teams, accompanying my son to training and matches, and by writing this book.

Over time, the urge in me to write this book increased. I was fortunate enough to have had good teachers and mentors myself, and my many experiences as a coach and a teacher have shown me that good training units and good school lessons have a lot in common. Thus, universal maxims lead to a subject matter being taught successfully. In this book I explain them in the context of football training.

For the near future my goal is the publication of my book. After that I plan to continue working on achieving my greatest dream, namely to found and run a football academy in Africa.

2021

